

DOCTORS, NURSES ON WAY TO MEXICO TO AID STRICKEN

Earth Shocks Caused Considerable Havoc and Several Deaths Wed. Night

REPORTS INDEFINITE

Thousands of Fear-Stricken Residents Are Encamped In the Open

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 16.—(INS)—A train load of doctors and nurses with medical supplies was en route from here today to the city of Oaxaca, on the Pacific coast, where earth shocks caused havoc Wednesday night and from 15 to 25 deaths.

Fragmentary reports reaching Mexico City indicated that nine out of ten buildings in the capital of the state by the same name were levelled by the temblor. With thousands of fear-stricken residents encamped in the open, their misery was further intensified by an unusual cold wave sweeping across the south at the time.

The earthquake, the worst experienced in Mexico in the past two decades, raged through 14 states, wrecking Mexico City as well as other cities. Tumbling walls in the capital caused one death and injured several, and momentary panic followed the shocks.

The epicenter was traced to Oaxaca, but disrupted communication facilities prevented adequate checkups. General Evaristo Perez, military commander of the province, got the following message through to President Pascual Ortiz Rubio, however.

"The effect of the earthquake was almost total destruction of this city. The dead number around 25 and there are many injured. It is impossible for me to describe the panic-stricken situation in which the city finds itself. My own home, though strongly built, was totally destroyed and the furniture wrecked. I have moved to the outskirts and am living in my automobile. Barracks and government buildings were destroyed."

Armed guards patrolled the ruined city to prevent looting, and relief squads continued to search the collapsed structure for dead and injured. The ancient city, situated some 220 miles southeast of here, has suffered in many previous earthquakes. Its population totals some 60,000. There are at least 40 Americans, but none of them have as yet been reported injured.

BRITAIN TESTS FOUR KINDS OF NEW PLANES; PLANS TO BUILD GREAT AIR FLEET

By Howard Berry

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
LONDON, Jan. 16.—That the next war will be fought in the air is a foregone conclusion, and the British Government, fully recognizing that the British Navy is no longer the dominant factor in world armaments, is making every effort to make Britain as invincible in the air as she was on the seas before the Great War.

Extensive plans for the complete overhauling of the Royal Air Force's airplanes are in course of completion, and it is learned that secret tests of several types are being made by the Air Ministry to find successors to air-planes which although only two or three years old are now considered out of date.

The famous "Southampton" flying-boat is to be scrapped, and preliminary examinations of its successor has been narrowed down to four planes.

The new flying boats are:
A Saunders-Roe flying boat, fitted with three Jupiter "9" engines.
A Blackburn Sydney, with three Rolls-Royce "F" type engines.

A Vickers Supermarine Southampton Mark 10, with three Jaguar "C" engines; and A Shortt Singapore II, with four engines of the Rolls-Royce "F" type.

The Blackburn Sydney being a monoplane, is altogether a new type of machine for the Air Force. The others are biplanes.

MINUTE TESTAMENT IS OWNED BY MRS. BISCHOFF

Magnifying Glass Required To Read "Postage Stamp" Volume

BOOK IS ILLUSTRATED

EDDINGTON, Jan. 16.—What is believed to be one of the smallest copies of the New Testament in the world is the property of a resident of Eddington, Mrs. George Bischoff.

The small book measures the width and length of a postage stamp, and is about one-half inch thick.

This unique copy of the last 27 books of the Bible has been in the possession of Mrs. Bischoff for the past 27 years, she having purchased same for the sum of ten cents. Although unable to recall from just whom she purchased the book, Mrs. Bischoff states she sent for the Testament to a company advertising the small volumes for sale.

The type of this miniature copy of a portion of the Word is so small that a magnifying glass is required in order that one might read it. Illustrations, several in number, also appear within the tiny covers of this book, these being steel engravings.

The paper used in printing the small pages is quite compact. The covers are of a light-weight card-board.

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Jan. 16.—One of the prize Bibles of this section is one that dates back more than 200 years.

Several years ago Mrs. John Knight, while looking over some articles left by her late mother, discovered an old English Bible, which was printed in 1725. In the front of the book are names of two publishing houses, the two having evidently combined to carry out the task of printing so large a volume for that age.

This particular Bible measures about nine by seven inches, being four inches thick. The type is of medium size, and throughout it is to be found the old fashioned "S". The volume is not illustrated.

At the front of the old and much used book are several pages given over to a history and general references to the then reigning King of Great Britain.

The Psalms appear both at the front and back of the Bible, the second group being arranged for singing purposes. The Apocrypha is also included within the covers.

POPULARITY OF LIBRARY GROWS; OVER 600 ADDITIONAL CARDS ISSUED DURING PAST YEAR

Thomas Scott Declines Re-election to Board of Managers—Armand V. Morris is Chosen as President of Institution—Miss Mary Swain Re-elected as Secretary-Treasurer

There has been a steady growth in the popularity of the Bristol Free Library, according to reports made at the annual meeting of the shareholders, last night.

The meeting was held in the library rooms and in addition to discussing the activities of the past year there was the annual election of directors and officers.

Thomas Scott, who for a number of years has been president of the Board of Managers, declined to accept re-nomination and election to the office. Mr. Scott's refusal is the cause for regret as he has taken much interest in the library. In declining re-nomination to the Board Mr. Scott stated that his duties were constantly increasing and that he did not feel as though he could devote the time to the office, which it required.

Carl Wenzel was chosen as a member of the Board and Armand V. Morris was elected president. Miss Mary Swain was chosen secretary and treasurer.

The retiring president of the Board of Managers submitted the following report:

To the Shareholders of the Bristol Free Library:
Your Board of Managers takes pleasure in presenting herewith the fifteenth annual report of the operation of your Library as a free institution.

WILL URGE HOMEOWNERS ADOPT REPAIR CAMPAIGN

Movement to Be Launched Throughout Three States Next Month

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 16.—(INS)—A campaign to "fix up the home" will be launched throughout Pennsylvania, Maryland, New Jersey, Delaware and the District of Columbia, by hardware dealers when they meet here February 9 to 13 for the annual sessions of the Pennsylvania and Atlantic Seaboard Hardware Association.

An intensive campaign, officials of the association said, will be carried to homeowners of the eastern region to get them to make repairs which have been neglected because of the business depression.

Approximately 5,000 retailers are expected to attend the sessions, which will be held in the Commercial Museum here. Coincidentally with the convention, the annual hardware and house-furnishing exhibit of the association will be held.

Serious depreciation of property may be avoided by pressing the projected "fix up the home" campaign, officials of the hardware association believe. The idea of the campaign is based on the assumption that thousands of home owners, during the widespread depression, have neglected to make repairs which, unless made soon, will amount to serious defects in their properties.

National figures in the hardware industry will be present for the sessions. W. B. Allen, of Palo Alto, Cal., president of the National Hardware Retailers Association, will cross the continent to address the seaboard gathering. From Boston, G. S. Wilson, national president of the Hardware Jobbers, will come to make an address, as will Saunders Norval, president of the Remington Arms Company. Other prominent speakers will be R. J. Atkinson, Brooklyn, Carl W. Dittman, New York, editor of "Good Hardware," E. B. Gallagher, Norwalk, Conn.; Grant Dwight, secretary of the National Implement Dealers Association, Philadelphia, and Philip R. Jacobson, hardware store planner and sales expert.

SCOUTS' PROGRESS WILL BE DRAMATIZED MONDAY

Big Session Arranged for Next Week at County Court House

TO SHOW PICTURES, TOO

"A Boy's Dream" will be the story of the Bucks County Council, Boy Scouts of America, program during 1930, as a feature of the county committee reports during the council meeting, Monday evening, at the court room, court house, Doylestown, at 7:45.

Opening with words of welcome from Council President Thomas B. Stockham, of Morrisville, the usual business meeting is to be a dramatization of 1930 Scouting. Everyone is invited, and it is especially requested that all representatives to the council meetings attend, accompanied by their wives and friends. The reports will be given in an entertaining manner through eight acts comprising numerous scenes. Troops and Ships that have been invited to assist are Bristol No. 1, Bristol No. 5, Chalfont No. 1, Doylestown No. 1, Doylestown No. 2, Doylestown No. 4, Morrisville No. 1, Morrisville No. 3, Langhorne No. 1, Newtown No. 2, Quakertown No. 1, Riegelsville No. 1, So. Langhorne No. 1, Treves No. 1, Churchville No. 1, Yardley No. 1 with the Seacoast Ships Robert Morris of Morrisville, Yankee Clipper of South Langhorne, and Elks of Bristol.

Scenes to be shown will be the annual council parade and rally, patrol camporee, Willow Grove funoree, county championship Scout meets, civic service projects, courts of honor, Doylestown Fair, training courses, Seacoast base, Seacoast regatta and Seacoast ball. Two movies will be exhibited; one reel of the regional camporee at Natural Bridge, Va.; and the other of the tree planting, patrol camping, and some program features at Bucon. A postal card projector is to be used to display many interesting photographs. Considerable time is being spent in portraying "what Scouts do" and in view of their being no admission charge to this program it will be an inexpensive evening's entertainment as well as giving parents further knowledge of what their sons are doing even though the home is some distance from the county seat.

The business meeting will be brief as it will only contain the report of Treasurer F. H. Clymer, and the annual election of council officers.

LEWISTOWN, Jan. 16.—(INS)—A conscience which troubled him for 11 years proved too much for Emerson ("Jumbo") Nichols, 39 year old Negro, who walked into police headquarters here to confess that he had killed another negro in a crap game in Arkansas in 1920.

Nichols told local officers he had just been discharged from the army and was seeking work in the cotton fields at the time of the killing.

TRENTON MEN IN JAIL AS OFFICERS SEEK DEATH CLUE

Pair Fails to Satisfy Authorities After Questioning in Case

NO CHARGE YET MADE

State Troopers and Detectives Busy Working On The Case

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 16.—Failing to satisfy Bucks county authorities with their answers when questioned concerning the suspected murder of Andrew Koleski, 21 years old, of 23 Turpin street, Trenton, two Trenton men arrested Wednesday night were committed to the county jail yesterday pending investigation into the case here.

Seeking a thread to untangle the mystery in the death of Koleski, who was found fatally injured on the Lincoln Highway, two miles below Langhorne, on Tuesday night, Corporal William Francis commander of the Pennsylvania State Police sub-station at Doylestown; Trooper Schnader, of the Langhorne State Highway Patrol, and Bucks County Detective Anthony Russo, of Bristol, spent several hours in Trenton last night.

The Pennsylvania officers, accompanied by Sergeant William T. Stanley, questioned several friends of Koleski, trying to trace his movements from the time he is alleged to have stolen an automobile belonging to Fred Palmer, of Hamilton Township, from South Warren street, until he suffered his fatal injuries.

The two men under arrest, John Kevelski, 29 years old, of 193 Humboldt street, and George Nelson, 27 years old, of 335 Perry street, were taken yesterday to the office of District Attorney Arthur Eastburn, at Doylestown, and questioned for some time. Kevelski is said to have admitted that he left Trenton with Koleski in the stolen car, but denied any knowledge concerning the death of his companion. He further stated that he was not near Koleski when the latter was fatally injured.

Nelson stated that he was in the neighborhood of South Warren street on Tuesday night when the car was stolen, and Clifford Naylor, of 1294 South Broad street, made a similar statement.

It was at first believed that Koleski was the victim of a hit-and-run driver, but State Police are working on the theory that he was "put on the spot" by being knocked unconscious by a blow over the head and then being draped over the front bumper of the automobile and crushed against an embankment.

If District Attorney Eastburn credits the plausibility of the murder theory, a coroner's inquest will be held. So far no charges have been lodged against Kevelski and Nelson.

The body of the victim was brought to his late home from a morgue at Philadelphia yesterday.

Police records here contain a report of an alleged street fight between Koleski and Kevelski last April, in which the combatants, armed with bricks, were quelled by two policemen. It is said that Kevelski some months previous attacked Koleski's father, whose name also is Andrew.

Koleski's parents yesterday expressed the belief that their son had been murdered.

"I have warned my son many times about going with these men, I told

At the annual tobacco show held in connection with the meeting, more than 300 samples were entered by 91 farmers, largest exhibit ever recorded in the county.

WEST HAZLETON, Jan. 13.—Chicken, hereafter, will be ranked an expensive tid-bit in the menus of Walter Schallack and John Klotz—unless they change their methods of obtaining the birds.

IRELAND AND PHILIPPINES

Enough time has now elapsed to enable the world to look behind the veil of silence which accompanied the restoration of peace in Ireland and assess for itself the degree of promise in that country which once was known as "the most distressed."

No longer are the virtues of the Irish people exaggerated by their claims of victimization; no longer are their national defects hidden by inability to order their national affairs to their own taste. Propaganda, pro and con, about Ireland has ceased to be the order of the day. The Irish are in business for themselves, and on the national ledger credit and debit columns they write their own balance sheet.

Self-government has knocked cold the idea of the Irish that they were a set of supermen. But the passing of such myths, cherished by many people elsewhere than in Ireland, must be regarded as a healthy sign. A people, like an individual, will not find itself until stern circumstance demands delivery of the goods.

The best proof that the Irish Free State is working out its own political salvation is contained in its failure of late to furnish the world with red-hot political news. That government governs best which gets into the newspapers least.

With the Irish experiment working out so satisfactorily it was to be expected that critics of Washington's Philippines policy would draw comparisons to bolster their arguments. They forget that the Filipinos are a more primitive people, that the islands are not geographically under the wing of the United States, like Erin is to England, and that Asiatics stand ready to exploit the Philippines once complete independence is granted.

DAYS ARE LONGER!

It's a long drink until the first swallow returns, but a few minutes more daylight in the morning and a few minutes more in the evening turn the thoughts of the winter-dreary to spring and the hoe and outdoor miniature golf.

Already the rumbling of the annual battle over daylight saving can be heard, with the golfers arrayed on one side and the hay pitchers on the other. With these arch adversaries a lengthening day is like a treasury surplus to pork-barrel congressmen.

Now is the time to try out the power of suggestion. And if repeating, "day by day the days are getting longer and business better," accomplishes nothing worth while, keeping pace with the days by working a little longer and harder will.

There is something calm and peaceful and comforting about "mellow" days, but if the world were to take a vote on the matter, the long day and short night would win by acclamation. Even the timid seems to prefer to work in daylight now.

Perhaps the reason for this partiality is that when daylight begins to linger a little in the evening man knows by instinct that the fish soon will begin to bite, things begin to grow, and baseball players go South.

Another good thing about old Dublin: he didn't act idiotic if the driver took a few drinks.

"FOREST LOVE" by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

After giving up Mat Tully because he is poor, Nancy Hollenbeck encourages the attentions of Jack Beamer, wealthy sportsman. Jack plans to divorce his wife and marry Nancy. On a mountain trip, Nancy falls in love with Roger Decatur, handsome ranger. She leaves her chaperones, the wealthy Porters, and secretly marries Roger. Nancy is happy with Roger in his rough mountain cabin, but when he leaves on a trip, the loneliness is unbearable and she returns home. She continues to keep her marriage a secret.

Nancy Slipped Back So Easily to the Old Life.

CHAPTER XXV. "I'm sorry, Nan—I wasn't listening. What was it?" "You weren't LISTENING?"

"No, I—I was thinking. . . . Positively, Helen Heffinger is a pathological liar. Mounted Police! She never knew one by name. And as for Mat Tully having anything to do with her! I don't believe it!" "Who cares?" Nancy murmured. She was too absorbed in her own thoughts to notice her sister's hectic flush and dark, snapping eyes. Minutes passed.

Louise shook herself angrily and began to rearrange the living room chairs. "Oh, May Belle's gossip reminds me. Jack Beamer sent those roses that were here when you came back."

"He . . . he did! . . . was there any word?"

"Mama took the card."

"Mama took the card? Mama took my letter! MAMA!" Nancy was in the kitchen in two leaps.

"Mama, Lou says you have the card Mr. Beamer sent with the roses. I'd like to know why you took my letter—"

Interference

"Only a card," mama said indistinctly, her mouth full of peas she was shelling for dinner.

"But I won't have you reading my mail, interfering in my affairs!"

"Nancy! Mama won't have it. I meant to tell you I didn't like Mr. Beamer's sending flowers. It doesn't look well. Those things are so easily misinterpreted. A gentleman of Mr. Beamer's social experience should know how easily people—"

A scornful, pitying smile twisted Nancy's lovely mouth. "If that's all you have to worry about—ROSES!" she said, "don't bother me about it. I have troubles of my own!"

But when her mother stepped backward, gentle eyes staring, little old hands at her withered throat, Nancy melted.

"Oh, mummy, mummy, you mustn't mind me!" she cried, enveloping her in one of the old bear-hug embraces. "I'm just your bad girl, blowing up about nothing . . . and I'm so nervous."

Half mollified Mrs. Hollenbeck straightened her mussed hair and settled her high net collar. "Mama understands," she said with dignity, "but you must not be so secretive. Can't you tell mama your little secrets just as you always have?"

Quite unexpectedly Nancy burst into tears.

"There, there," Mrs. Hollenbeck soothed. "Mama's girl!"

Nancy slipped back so easily into the old life. The Fall season was starting early. Every day the postman brought thick white envelopes, some big and square, others so little that they slipped through his fingers and he picked them up grumbling.

Tens. Dances. Bridge parties. They were devoted to all of the big affairs, but few of the small, exclusive functions.

"I see where the Arnolds are having a dinner dance for some of the officers of that Dutch ship. Six of the beautiful young girls in Piedmont society," mama read from the morning paper. "Really, I can't see why you girls—"

But even as she read she knew it would have been a tragedy if they had been invited. It would have meant new clothes, and where would they come from? Things had never been so bad in all the lean years of her marriage.

Once Nancy would have worried. She used to suffer agonies wondering if she would be invited here or there. It was torture to have to listen to May Belle Craig or Helen Heffinger tell about something from which she had been left out. But it didn't matter much now. Nothing mattered.

She couldn't even get interested in the press of his mother coming to live with them.

Louise didn't care any more either. Her brief interest in society had flared and died, since the never saw Mat Tully any more.

Helen Heffinger was always talking about him . . . did she really see him? Louise wondered. Helen was always imagining something. Well, let her . . . Lou prided herself on seeing things as they really were. Men didn't like her very well, she wouldn't force herself.

Resignation

She drifted into a little clique of girls older than herself. Intelligent, plain looking girls who had no men friends. They went to concerts in the evenings, and met in the afternoons to discuss L'Art Moderne and the new poetry.

"I think, dear, that you should include gentlemen in the evening parties," mama had suggested.

And Louise had laughed and said harshly, "Humph! A wonderful chance. Do you think if we had men to take us out we'd be going to concerts TOGETHER?"

That frightened mama. Frightened her terribly. Lou talking like an old maid . . . and Nancy . . . even Nancy was getting too hard to please. Spencer Fuller, Fred Galan, even Frank Haworth, Gil Neal's cousin, Nancy treated them all alike. Flirted and seemed to be having a gorgeous time while she was with them, and declared her head ached and they'd bored her to tears as soon as they had turned their backs.

"Girls can't be TOO critical these days," mama said reprovingly.

ly, feeling that Nancy was going a bit too far.

Nancy had burst out laughing then and stuttered, "That a good one!" and broke down and wept.

Poor Nellie Hollenbeck. Poor mother hen who hatched two ducks.

On a night in September when the red harvest moon gilded the black river, and ten thousand stars twinkled in a cloudless sky, May Belle Craig announced her engagement to Gilbert Neal, Jr.

The Hollenbeck girls had been formally invited to the small dinner that preceded the much talked of Venetian Carnival that was to mark the end of the season at the Craig's Russian River place.

"Of course, they're not quite in society," Mrs. Craig mourned, going over the list with May Belle, "but you girls have been together so much, and poor Kitty is my oldest friend. . . . I suppose we'll have to have them."

With Gilbert Neal almost in the family now, and the important Neals coming to dinner, Cora Craig felt she couldn't be too careful.

Lou and Nancy knew that the engagement was going to be announced as soon as they saw that the best lace tablecloth and silver from the Pacific Avenue house had been moved to Craigfield for the occasion. And after the others had seen little old Mr. Neal, red faced and bored, take his place at Mrs. Craig's right, and big Mrs. Neal, blowsy and careless and covered with dirty, old-fashioned jewelry, at Mr. Craig's right, they knew it, too.

May Belle, a little awed by the great Neals, was unnaturally quiet until after the first cocktail. Then she grinned, tossed her head, and settled down to enjoy herself.

The Announcement

Mr. Craig, perspiring freely, stood up at a signal from his wife. Lifting his glass, and silently cursing that he, whose after dinner speeches were really a feature of the Lyons' Club Banquets, should be so nervous, he stammered:

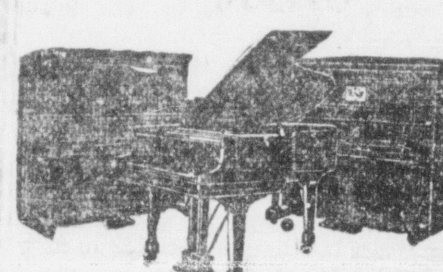

"I propose that we drink to the health of May Belle and the young man she has decided to add permanently to our family, Gilbert Neal."

The Hollenbeck girls exchanged glances. So May Belle got him at last.

Popularity of Library Grows During Year

(Continued from Page One) mands the exercise of rare skill and judgment, together with a great personal sacrifice of time upon the part of the members of the Book Committee. They have built most wisely upon the foundation which they had at hand, and your Library, as it presents itself today, reflects the greatest share of credit upon their endeavors, for the high standard which has been maintained.

The librarian has recorded the use of the Reading Room, three thousand and forty-five times by patrons during the past year, evidencing the fact that the facilities which the Library has to offer are both appreciated and utilized.

Strange as it may appear, inattention and carelessness of many of the readers have proven a source of revenue that has been most helpful in the financial maintenance of the Library. Three hundred and fifteen dollars and eighty cents were received in fines from those who failed to return books within the allotted time. It would have been far more preferable to have received that amount in the form of voluntary contributions rather than as a penalty inflicted.

The Library Committee is to be highly commended for the very able manner in which they successfully met the demands for additional shelving facilities, with the limited space which they found available.

The tier of book shelves, installed for the younger element, particularly those being from the sixth to the thirteenth grade in our schools, is being maintained at the best standard possible and has demonstrated the wisdom of meeting a condition which had been practically overlooked for several years.

Every effort is expended in the replenishment of suitable books for the juveniles in the fourth and fifth grades, with the thought constantly in view, of presenting, for the use of this younger generation, reading material that will prove not only educational but at the same time a stimulus for the minds that are developing.

We will crave your indulgence, fearing that repetition may prove monotonous, but with the desire to be informative to those who have recently come into our midst, we again present the statement that your Library is supported solely by those of our people who are sufficiently public spirited to contribute annually toward its maintenance. However, the contrast is most striking, when making a comparison between the almost negligible number of contributors and the large number of those who make use of the Library.

It has been our constant effort in the past, to present the fact as clearly and as concisely as is possible to you, that this Library is free, that it is open to those who are willing to abide by its very limited and justly framed rules; that without distinction of age, race, color or religion it is placed at the service of all; that it is not dominated by any class or cult, and the only urge that is insisted upon is that it shall be maintained for the use of all of our people. It is possible for you to make this a larger and a better Library, but to achieve that greatly to be desired end, it is absolutely necessary that you give not only moral but a real financial support that will permit of the fruition of your endeavors, and create within the town an institution in which every citizen can claim ownership with the greatest feeling of personal pride. Every contributor of five dollars or over is considered a share-holder, and every person who makes use of the library should gladly welcome the opportunity to not only secure their own membership, but to extend that privilege to others.

The one hundred and ninety-five books, which were donated, were a most welcome addition to the Library shelves. The Board of Managers desires to express its appreciation to the donors for literature, which in this manner, was made available to the readers.

The Members of the Board also desire to express publicly their thanks to those who by their contributions made the operation of the Library possible.

It is with a great share of pleasure that we express to Mr. Joseph R. Grundy our sincere appreciation of his courtesy in permitting the use of the Library Rooms, without charge, and also in acknowledgement of the contribution of a new heater in place of the one that had become entirely unfit and unsafe for use.

Your retiring Board of Managers desires to thank Miss Rogers and her able assistants for the courteous treatment afforded patrons of the Library, and for their constant effort in working for its success.

Its Power to Do the Body
Good Really Surprised Me"

Dr. Chas. L. Lewis of Pittsburgh writes: "When I was first retained to pass upon the merits of Flaxolyn, I must confess I was mighty skeptical about the claims made for it."

"Being rather run down myself at the time, and recognizing the symptoms of auto-intoxication, I decided to try Flaxolyn. I felt that if it did not do me any good at least it could not do me any harm."

"I want to tell you now that I am well satisfied that Flaxolyn has genuine merit—it acts on stomach, liver, kidneys, and bowels in a natural, efficient way."

"As a rule I do not endorse any internal preparation, but I am so well satisfied that Flaxolyn can do an immense amount of good for the people here, I am perfectly willing to allow my name to be used in an open endorsement of Flaxolyn."

HOW FLAXOLYN HELPS YOU:

1. Flaxolyn is a splendid Stomachic. Sharpens the appetite. Helps you get more nourishment out of your food.
2. Flaxolyn helps Liver by activating bile.
3. Flaxolyn is a gentle diuretic for the Kidneys, giving these organs extra stimulus to drive out waste or irritants.
4. Flaxolyn acts naturally on the entire Intestinal Canal, due to its Spanish Licorice, Sacred Bark, Arabian Senna, and other good old-fashioned herbs.

We make this sensational offer: Try Flaxolyn today. Unless you are heartily satisfied with your improvement by the sixth pleasant spoonful, return partly used bottle and get your money back. Thousands have been benefited by Flaxolyn. Why not you too? Cost is little.

Isabel Had Her Heart Set on Summer Ermine

—She Really Needed Sable, You Know—but

She Was Willing to Be Reasonable and Make a Concession, but When Even the Ermine Was Not Forthcoming—Why It Was Too Much
By WINIFRED BLACK.

ISABEL is tired of life.

Just simply tired to death of the whole thing, parties, weddings and engagement announcements and bad servants and good servants, who want to be married and have homes of their own, just when you have broken them in to be somewhere near what you want.

Schoolgirls who talk too much, and boy friends who do not talk enough.

Books that are just the same old story, over and over again, country clubs full of bores and city clubs crowded with the dumb-bells.

All the bootleg stuff, getting worse and worse every day, and half the women you know saying they really can't get more than a couple of new dinner dresses this winter, their husbands are so petty about it all.

Isabel wants to go abroad and "forget it all."

But husband says he can't afford to let her go. And what do you think, Isabel had her mind all made up for a new Summer ermine coat for last Christmas.

She was willing to be reasonable about it. She really needed a sable, and what her heart deeply desired was a chinchilla, but that was out of the question. So Isabel made up her mind to say, "Thank you," for a nice little Summer ermine, and mean it, too.

Oh, something around fifteen hundred to three thousand dollars, and Tommy didn't get her even that!

Isabel hinted about it a day or so before Christmas, and Tommy came right out and said she might as well know the truth. He'd do the best he could for her for Christmas, but the "best he could" wouldn't be so very fine this year.

By next year, maybe—and Isabel was so disappointed that she just couldn't help crying, and Tommy just grabbed up his hat and slammed out of the house in the meanest way.

No wonder there are so many divorces with men acting such perfect brutes.

If people would only think right, said Isabel, everything would be all right. Conditions would be better. But will they do it?

Not they. They just moan and groan and worry, and life is getting to be just one funeral after another. Do you know what I wish someone would do for Isabel?

I wish someone would take Isabel and make her stand in the bread line and listen to the stories she would hear.

Just one day there ought to make Isabel so ashamed of herself and her comfort and luxury and her cold-hearted selfishness that she'd stop talking about suicide and go out and try to bring some comfort and some hope and some brightness into the lives of the poor terrified, desperate women and men who have to stand up and hear their own children crying because they're too hungry to sleep, and too hungry to play, and too hungry to do anything but dream of good hot Irish stew or a dish of sizzly brown sausage, or a plate of good roast beef.

It's giving time, Isabel, friendly time, kindly time, the time for warm hearts and generous hands. Be human and friendly again—just for a change. Forget the Summer ermine and win a new interest in life.

Why Commute?

Why travel back and forth to your employment, which is here in Bristol, when such desirable dwellings are to be obtained here at such reasonable rents? It will pay any individual to investigate!

Work Where You Live and Live Where You Work.

If you are employed in Bristol you should live here. It will be less expensive and there are numerous other advantages derived from making your home in the town where you are employed.

You will save many hours a year which are now spent in traveling and you will have more time with your family.

The saving in money will also be considerable. Add to that which you are now paying for rent the amount which you spend in traveling back and forth to your employment here. You'll be surprised at the total. Rent a house here at a moderate rental and bank the difference.

Houses.

Comfortable dwellings, well situated and at moderate rents are to be found in that portion of Bristol which is immediately adjacent to the P. R. R. passenger station.

These houses make ideal homes and consist of six rooms with bath.

Conveniences.

They are heated by hot-air furnaces with a direct pipe leading to every room. They are lighted with electricity and are equipped with sewer, municipal water and gas.

Each room is well lighted and yet the space devoted to windows is not excessive.

Front porches are another attractive feature as is also a small rear yard where children can play in safety away from the perils of traffic.

Houses such as these would rent for considerably more in any city, where the conveniences would not surpass those offered here.

They Overlooked the Diamonds

THERE is a modern flippancy to the effect that "What you don't know won't hurt you." It is also a fallacy. For instance:

The farmers of Kimberley were a disgusted, disheartened lot. They said the soil was too rocky to earn them a living. Some of them left. Others died in poverty.

And all the time their children were playing with diamonds.

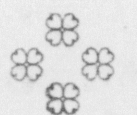

But the farmers didn't know. They thought the priceless gems were pebbles.

Don't be like those Kimberley farmers. Know!

Don't seek opportunity in some distant place and overlook the diamonds that are daily within your grasp. Know!

Advertising is a mine of opportunity. It tells of values you wouldn't know about if it were not there to guide you.

The secret of economical buying is information. The man or woman who is best informed is the one who buys to best advantage.

New Page Was Written At Grand Central Palace

A new page was written last week in the history of national automobile shows at the Grand Central Palace in New York City where the first automobile show of the 1931 season proved unusually successful.

Probably no exhibition within the past three decades has ever offered the public a show that held more that was interestingly new than this show which closed last Saturday night. About two hundred separate exhibits of passenger cars, accessories and trucks were on display; nearly three hundred complete cars, chassis and commercial vehicles occupied the three floors of the big exhibition building.

The 1931 models definitely reflect the public demand for more sustained and higher speed, improved riding qualities, silent and more economical operation.

One example of the satisfaction with which these demands have been met was found in the exhibit of the Buick Motor Company, where several shining new models of this popular line of Straight Eights held daily the attention of thousands of visitors.

Special interest centered in the Buick exhibition because of the announcement made on the opening day of the show that the Synchro-mesh transmission and the Buick torque tube drive are now built into the smallest and least expensive cars in the Buick line, the six models on the 114-inch wheelbase chassis.

The Auto Show visitors this year got a definite impression from the additional new eight, twelve and sixteen that the multi-cylinder engine is here to stay, and frequent predictions were heard that the eight within a short time will virtually displace the six cylinder motor which some ten years ago took the laurels from the four cylinder engine.

Time Arrived, Says Pinchot, For Phila. to Redeem Herself

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 16.—(INS)—The time has arrived for Philadelphia to decide whether it intends to be "a man or a mouse among the great cities of the country," Governor-elect Gifford Pinchot boldly informed 300 prominent Philadelphians at a chamber of Commerce banquet in his honor here last night.

He flamed all the city's ills to a "corrupt political machine."

"Will it put control of its affairs into honest and competent hands or will it continue as the unresisting prey of a corrupt machine?" asked the Governor-elect. "Will it allow that machine to do whatever its evil will desires?"

The address was one of the strongest ever made by Pinchot here. It was delivered before the city's most prominent business men and financiers at the Manufacturers' Club. Philip H. Gadsen, president of the Chamber of Commerce, presided.

"With all my heart," Pinchot said, "I desire the steady and abundant growth of business in Philadelphia. And even more ardently do I desire increasing comfort and financial independence for every Philadelphian home. But it would be both wrong and foolish for me and for you to overlook the obvious fact that the remedy for the present situation lies in Philadelphia and not outside."

Bad government and bad times, Pinchot asserted, have brought about conditions here whereby $30,000,000 is outstanding in tax delinquencies and forced the city to start the new year with a deficit of $7,500,000. The real estate assessments here are notoriously unjust, he said.

"Men wholly without qualifications handle the delicate responsibility of determining the true value of property. The board of revision of taxes is composed of incompetent politicians, two out of three of whom spent a good portion of their time last summer in circulating the petitions of another party than their own," Pinchot added.

At this point he deviated from his attack on the local political chiefs to assure the assembled business men he was not attacking them.

"No one need feel the slightest apprehension that I intend to punish or will be a party to punishing the good citizens of Philadelphia," explained the Governor-elect, "because of the failure of the political masters to support the full Republican ticket. I draw a sharp line between the citizens and business men on one hand and the ruling politicians on the other."

He also explained that when he spoke of the "corrupt machine" here he did not refer to Mayor Harry A. Mackey.

MORRISVILLE HIGH TO PLAY BRISTOL TONIGHT

(By Leon Schiffer)

Just when the local school quintet was celebrating because it had finally gotten started upon the right road, they find themselves faced with a detour.

However, they still have another chance to regain their composure from the setback which the New Jersey Institute for the Deaf handed them Tuesday night, and display their prowess when they meet the Morrisville aggregation in the local "gym" tonight.

Upon being interviewed in order to ascertain what his opinion of last Tuesday's game was and find out who his nominees to start the coming tilt would be, Coach Townsend replied:

Referring to last Tuesday night's match, I thoroughly believe that the boys lost their own game for the simple reason that they did not freeze the ball at the right time. Therefore, in order to punish them for disobeying orders, my starting line-up will consist of the following: Forwards, Britton and Herman; center, Galzerano; guards, Fies and Dougherty.

Taking all into consideration, both teams are evenly matched, with Morrisville possibly having an added advantage in height. Last season both squads split in the two games which were played. Another important thing which will probably help to spur the visitors on to victory is the Morrisville slogan of "Beat Bristol."

Tonight is what may be termed as "bargain night." Two strong preliminary games are also on the docket. The local Jay Vees, who play before the big team, will be in action in the first set-to against the visitors' Jay Vees.

The second set-to will find the Cardinal and Gray sextet opposing the Morrisville High basketball sextet, one of the leading contenders for the lower Bucks county girls' championship.

Turning our attention to the latter game we see in the line-up for the local school two of the fastest track stars in the county, "Mim" Rhodes and Enid Whyatt, who will fill the position of forwards. Continuing our inspection of the line-up our attention is

STATE NEWS

HARRISBURG, Jan. 16—(INS)—It may be a coincidence—

During the first Pinchot administration, a marble slab lettered in brass and marking the spot where the late President Theodore Roosevelt stood at the time the State Capitol was dedicated, October 4, 1906, was set in the floor of the Capitol just inside the main entrance to the building. Two or three years ago the lettering began to loosen, the slab was taken up and stored away.

New another Pinchot administration hears. And the slab has been brought forth and workmen are replacing it in the capitol rotunda.

The marker was originally presented to the state by Governor-elect Pinchot, an associate and admirer of the late President.

YORK, Jan. 16—(INS)—Members of the Leo Fire Company, of Red Lion, are looking forward to a jaunt over the state line to Crisfield, Md., in the near future.

The main attraction is a bountiful oyster supper.

Speeding to a fire at Winterstown some time ago, the Leo company came upon an overturned automobile. They released the occupants, Mr. and Mrs.

Charles W. Howeth, of Crisfield, helped them right their car, and in gratitude the Maryland couple promised to "throw" an oyster supper for the company.

A few days ago, President Howard W. Sheeler received a letter, informing him the supper was ready whenever the fire laddies were.

A committee has been named to make arrangements for the collection of the reward.

PHILLIPSBURG, Jan. 16—(INS)—A veritable "Leaping Lena" of automobiles has been discovered here, in the opinion of police who investigated a curious accident occurring on the highway, a short distance from this town.

State troopers reported that the car ran off the road, upset, then hurled a wire fence about four and one-half feet high.

After tossing its occupants out, the car came to a stop in a field, thirty feet inside the fence.

But along the entire length of the fence, no marks of the car's "hop" were discernible.

Doylestown Inn re-elected J. Carroll Molloy, of Doylestown and Pineville as their president for another year.

Other officers of the association were re-elected as follows: Vice-president, Hugh B. Eastburn, of Bristol; secretary, Charles J. Hupp, of Doylestown; treasurer, Edward R. Kirk, of Wycombe. The following directors were elected for a term of three years: William A. Rossiter, Langhorne; Wilson K. George, Quakertown; and William H. Molloy, Ivyland.

Harry S. Harte, of Harrisburg, secretary of the State Real Estate Board, was a guest of the meeting last night. He spoke of pending legislation and the activities of the Real Estate Board's officials in Harrisburg. He made it known that the State Real Estate Board's lobbyists in Harrisburg are strongly opposing the proposed bill that would necessitate Pennsylvanians paying a state income tax.

Mr. Harte stated that of course the bill had practically no chance of being passed, but informed the real estate men that officials in Harrisburg were "taking no chances."

Reports of progress were made by Mayor Thomas B. Stockham, of Morrisville, chairman of the publicity committee of the county board, who is outlining a plan whereby Bucks county will be advertised for fifty-two weeks in the newspapers of the county and then followed up by a program of national advertising from coast to coast.

Bucks county bankers have been "sold" on the proposition, it was reported. The various banks of the county are willing to co-operate in raising the fund that will be spent on publicity and advertising.

"LITTLE JOE" HAGEN -- OF THE MILLROSE A.A. -- ONE OF OUR GAMEST AND BEST DISTANCE MEN.

JOE MCCLUSKEY -- FORDHAM'S GREAT DISTANCE RUNNER!

SPORT BUG.

AMERICA expects much of its leading two-milers during the current indoor track season and the New York area is particularly proud of its collegiate trio that are especially groomed for that distance—Joe Hagen, formerly of Columbia and now wearing the colors of the Millrose A. A., "Fordham Joe" McCluskey and Phil Schacklette of Manhattan College.

In the same class should be listed Gus Moore, best of the negro two-milers, and that other metropolitan favorite from Boston, the veteran Leo Lermond. Some or all of that quintet should figure in several contests before the Winter season ends. All of them are contestants for national honors.

Perhaps the most promising in that array is McCluskey whose flat-footed, all but awkward running style deceives the casual observer into minimizing "Fordham Joe's" marked class as a two-miler. To look at him loping along, you'd never believe that his stride is longer than that of most of his rivals nor that he can maintain a hot pace. But that is just what McCluskey does.

He keeps close to the lead with the pacemakers in all his two-mile efforts. He runs naturally and "Mac" has no trill to his efforts. He simply keeps pressing on with his eyes fixed straight ahead. He's young and probably is just approaching his utmost power. If
